

Dear FCC,

I'm writing a complaint to your recent activities including the censoring of Howard Stern. Your organization is clearly contradicting the constitution and the simple values on which this country was based. I am sick to death of the government and this puritan right wing administration thinking they know what's best for me. Sorry, but I know what's best for me, not you. Not the government. We're nothing but serial numbers to you people, votes, money makers for whatever agenda of the day you may be on. As an artist and a writer I can easily see the disgusting potential that your "crusade" has. I'm sure you're familiar with the 1984 analogies so I won't add anything new. Although, I suppose you might want to start banning that next since it clearly goes against your actions and might lead others to think what you're doing is wrong. I suppose a lot of books I'm used to enjoying will be attacked sooner or later. Along with any entertainment personality, film, cartoon, comic book or radio show that might speak out against the government. And to be quite honest, I'm not even a fan of Stern. I don't find it all that interesting and yeah, some of his off color jokes are needless. But that's our choice to make, not yours. I also am a huge fan of South Park, the Chapelle Show and the Daily Show on Comedy Central, primarily for their political and social satire. I would be even more upset if you went after something I really love. I know what you government types always resort to: the children. Think of the children, they're are future. We're all on to just how much you care about the children. You use them as a platform and excuse for your obvious lack of respect for free speech. Parents need to parent children, that's why its called parenting and not governing. It is not your decision what we listen too. What we read. What we watch. You're just there to watch the networks and make sure they aren't abusing their employees. So remember your place, and leave the thinking and choices to the people who put you where you are. The last time a government started making decisions on how the public should think and what media is okay for them to view, a little group called the Nazi's formed and descimated much of Europe. We won't stand idley by and watch discrimination and hate spread. Those who do not learn from history are doomed to repeat it, and we've learned. When are you going to get around to it? Or are your employees and policy makers not allowed to read such dangerous history books?
